

Fostering an Agile Environment that Produces

Who's this guy

- Joel Tosi
 - VersionOne Technical Product and Agile Consultant
 - 12 year Software Industry - Developer, Manager, Architect, Agile Coach
 - Math Geek

- Contact information
 - joel.tosi@versionone.com
 - @joeltosi

How are we going to produce

- Questions throughout – Please!
- Share challenges AND successes

Where is this coming from?

Agile isn't easy

Sustaining agility will be even harder

Agile won't answer all your questions

In Software

Ever been on this project?

With props to Jeff Patton

Transitioning to Agility is Difficult

Geeks will geek

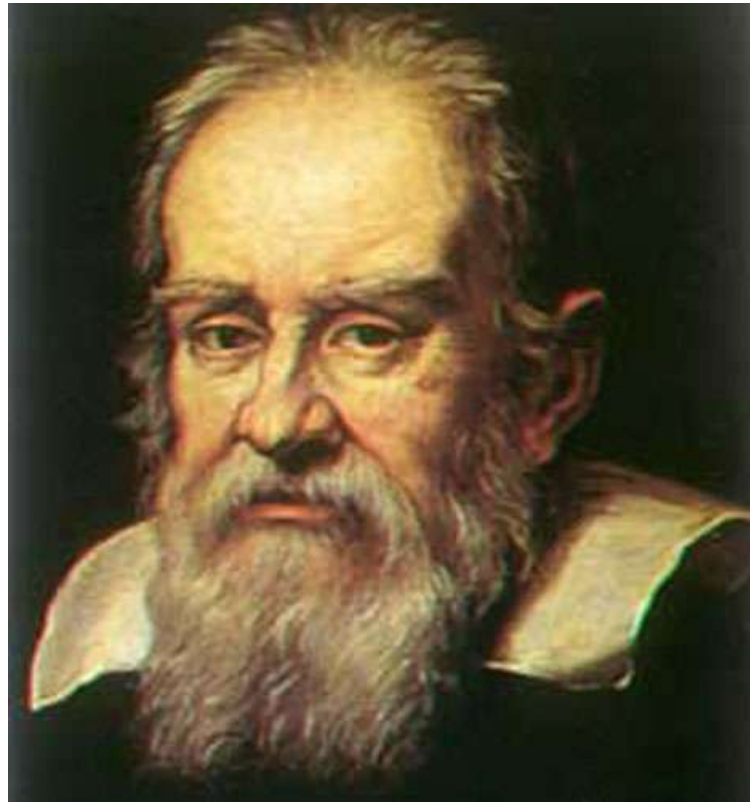

People will be excited

Just like software, unplanned occurrences will happen

Transitions need agility

If you are progressing along randomly...

That first story was awesome

Great story

What is a community?

Why do communities
even matter?

Reality

Sometimes people don't want to be part of your community

Continued Reality

Are people being forced to this change?

Sustaining Agility

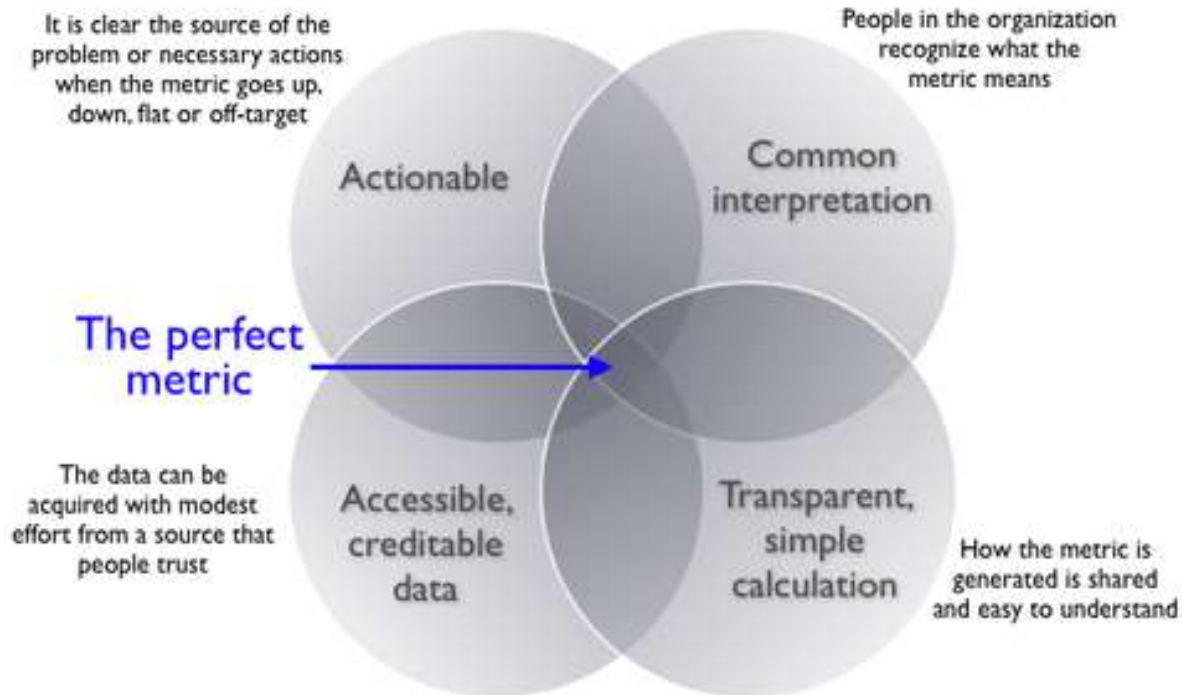

Is not steamrolled, its not even grassroots

Its embraced because it is making work better and providing competitive advantage

How about a story

Why / What

Don't just collect

Visible

Talk

Understand

Discuss

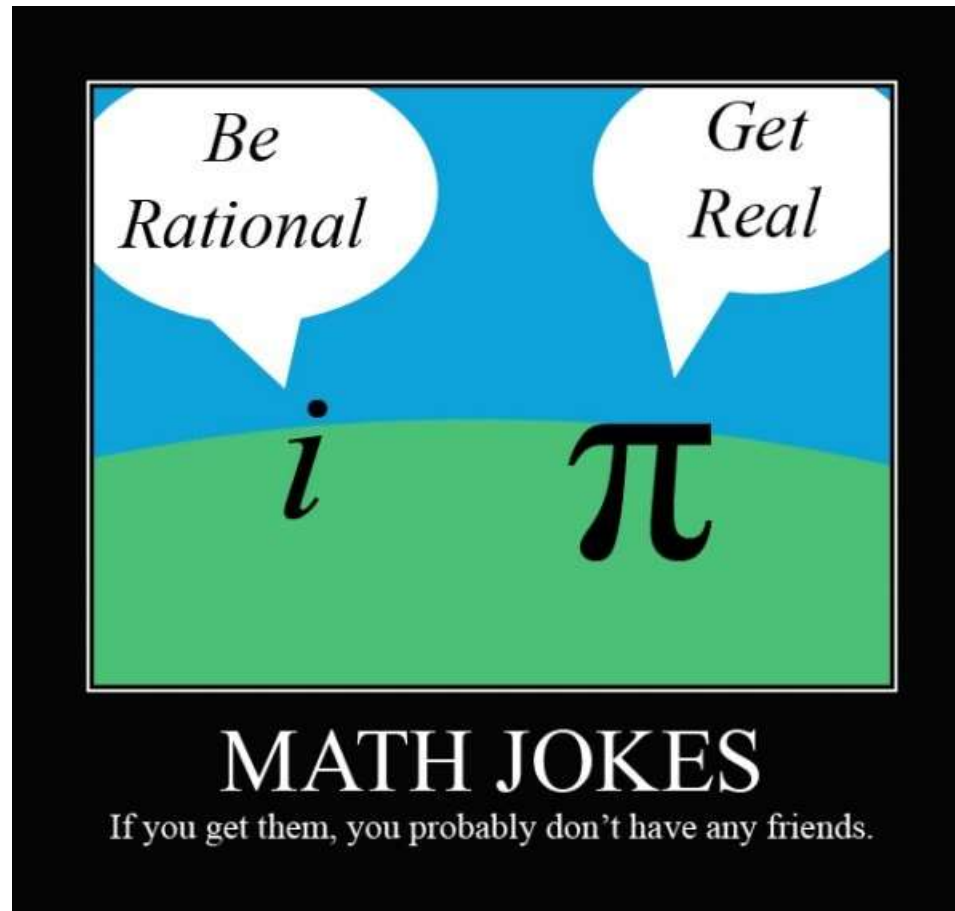

Improve/Adjust

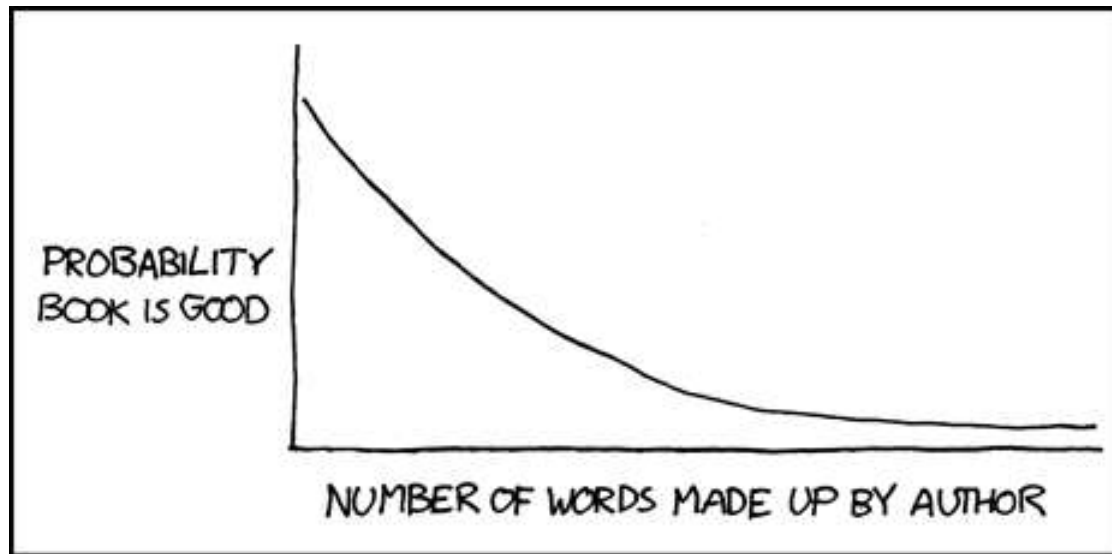

Agility that Produces

Visualizing TUDI helps you create Agility that produces

Last story I promise

Don't get lost in terms

"THE ELDERS, OR FRAÁ'S, GUARDED THE FARMLINGS (CHILDREN) WITH THEIR KRYTOSES, WHICH ARE LIKE SWORDS BUT AWESOMER..."

Beyond Agility

Don't worry about

- Are we 'doing Agile right / enough'?
- Should we be doing Kanban
- Lean is awesome, lets remove all waste

Focus on

- Can we provide adequate predictability and transparency
- Are we learning – about our market, our customer – and satisfying a real need
- Are we getting better

Do

Lead fearlessly and with compassion

Be ruthless but kind

Expand your toolset - improve your use of tools

The end of storytime

Questions

